SENSATIONAL DISCOVERIES.

Divers Find That the Magazines of the Battleship Maine Have Not Been Exploded.

Belief Grows at Washington That Some Action Must Be Taken at Once in Regard to Cuba.

New York, Feb. 21.—The sensational news has been received here that divers found the magazines of the Maine intact, showing conclusively, if this be true, that the explosion which wrecked the big ship was from the outside and not an internal one. The belief here is becoming stronger every day that the disaster was not accidental.

Washington, Feb. 21.—The impression has become general here that the president has decided definitely to end the Cuban war. From a most reliable source it is learned that President McKinley has fixed upon a policy whereby he hopes to see the stricken island free from Spanish rule within a year. Behind him he believes he will find the great bulk of the American people. Everything will depend upon the outcome of the Maine disaster, if it be proven to be an accident the administration will recognize the belligerency of the Cubans, giving sufficient time for the excitement of the present incident to pass.

Whether the disaster of the Maine proves to be the result of an accident or of foul play, the president cannot resist the will of the people longer. The question has got to be settled, and settled in his administration, and for political reasons alone he would not permit the Spaniards to again conquer the island.

The feeling here is cooling down to a calm and deliberate judgment that the Maine was blown up by a torpedo. Whether the torpedo went off by accident or not is an open question to the minds of most people. Constructor Hiebhorn said Saturday: "It may be possible to prove that the Maine was not blown up by a torpedo, but it will be impossible to prove that it was blown up by an accident, resulting from carelessness of our own officers. Nothing short of a complete substantiation of the accidental theory will ever satisfy the American people."

WEATHER REPORT.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 21.—Fair and colder tonight, fair Tuesday.

A ROBBER RIGHT.

Didn't Want to Look For Valuables—Made the Owners Get Up and Get Them.

Used a Pistol in a Systematic Robbery at Maud Bell's Yesterday Morning.

One of the most daring robberies of recent years, and one equaled only by the Torian robbery one week ago, was committed at the bordillo kept by Maud Bell, on West Court street, yesterday morning about 4:50 o'clock.

A negro broke in a window, and first went to Madame Bell's room. He roused her from her slumbers, and demanded her money and rings threatening to blow her head off if she resisted or made any outcry. He stuck a big pistol in close proximity to her head to enforce his desire. He then compelled her to get up, unlock a drawer, and give him a $10 she had there. He also took a $45 diamond ring, but missed getting one worth $150 by the prompt action of his victim, who dropped the ring to the floor, unperceived by the robber. He then warned her to give no alarm, and proceeded to the rooms of two of the inmates, and demanded their money, but failing to get any made them take off their rings. He looked over them and decided he did not want any of them and gave them back.

The police are confident the robber was wholly familiar not only with the house and its inmates, but with the time the police go on duty and other things. He seemed to know just where to go, first taking the precaution to turn out the lights. Several young men had been there, but left only a short time before the robber arrived. He was evidently watching them, also. The police go off duty about 5 o'clock in the morning, and the beats are then unpatrolled until 6 or 7 o'clock.

George Goodman, colored, formerly a hotel porter, was arrested by officer Hoyer on suspicion, and is in the lockup. Up to this afternoon three different colored men had been arrested on suspicion by the police, but none had been identified at press time. The robber had on a mask to conceal a portion of his features.

COUNCIL MEETING.

Interesting Matters to Come Up For Consideration.

The council meets tonight in regular session, and it is expected that several interesting matters will come up for consideration.

Mayor Lang will have brought up for consideration the old "cow ordinance," part of which was repealed by the law being decided unconstitutional by Judge Bishop, and as it now stands cows can now run at large at any time. He will have the old ordinance passed, requiring cow owners to keep their stock up at night.

The screened gravel will be brought up for first passage, and if Councilman Stark is present the curfew ordinance will be presented.

Master Mechanic Hassman, of the Illinois Central shops, has asked Mayor Lang to appoint J. B. Cheatham and R. T. Flynn, night watchmen, special police officers without pay.

MUST SUPPORT THE CHILD.

So Says the Jury in the Caruthers Case.

John Caruthers, the colored barber charged with bastardy on a warrant sworn out by Emma Buford, was tried before County Judge Tully Saturday afternoon and the jury decided that he must pay $48 per year for five years for the support of the child. He went back to jail in default of bond.

Clerk Graham's Office Improved. A new floor is being placed in County Clerk Graham's office in the court house today. Clerk Graham now has one of the best equipped offices in the state.

A LOAD OF BUCKSHOT

Ends the Wretched Life of Wm. Hall, Across Island Creek—Tom Hannon His Slayer.

They Quarreled This Afternoon Over Their Wives—Hall Drew an Ax, Hannon Fired the Fatal Shot.

William Hall, who worked in various mills in Mechanicsburg and occupied with his wife and baby a small room in a big dilapidated house diagonally across from Capt. Farley's grocery, was shot about noon today by Tom Hannon, who lives in an adjoining room, and died about 1:30 of his wounds. The weapon was a single-barreled shotgun loaded with buckshot, and the lead penetrated Hall's left leg below the knee, tearing a huge hole from which his life blood gushed in an incessant stream until he was almost drained.

The two men had quarreled. The disturbance attracted the attention of passersby, and Dr. Troutman, whose office is across the street, started across. He heard a pistol shot, and somebody called him to come over. He started up the crooked flight of stairs and at the top met Tom Hannon, pale and excited.

"I give myself up, I give myself up; I killed him," he exclaimed. Dr. Troutman turned him over to a man named Leverman and Mr. Bud Quarles, and told them to take him to the lockup. On the way to the car, Hannon made his statement, declaring he had shot in self defense. Hall having struck him with an ax.

Dr. Troutman went into the room and found Hall lying on the floor in a pool of clotted blood. He hastily bound up the wound, but the blood had flowed freely, and Hall began to grow weaker and weaker. His wife sat in a corner, amid dirty dishes, pans and filthy rags and wept. Every thing indicated the most extreme squalor and poverty. When the doctor left, he said there was no hope for Hall, and about ten minutes later he gasped and it was all over.

Mrs. Hall, the wife, stated to a reporter that she and Hannon's wife ran away last week and went to Smithland. Hall went after them, and seemed to blame Mrs. Hannon for persuading his wife to leave. He slapped her and she drew a pistol on him. He had her arrested. Mrs. Hall returned Friday, but Mrs. Hannon is still there. She was released when arrested.

This morning Hannon entered the room occupied by Hall and his wife and called Hall a ——— and Mrs. Hall something equally as bad. Hall grabbed an ax, according to his wife, and struck Hannon. The latter ran into another room, seized the gun and ran back with it, shooting Hall while he stood in his own room. He was in very close quarters, and the shot cut a large vein. Hannon then ran to give himself up.

Both men are of the lower class. They lived in a wretched place, and evidently lived wretched lives. They have had trouble before, judging from reports. They worked at the mills whenever they could find work, and sometimes shipped aboard steamboats. Both appear to be about 30 years old.

Hannon was carried to the county jail and a warrant was issued against him for murder.

Coroner Phelps will hold an inquest over the remains this afternoon.

At 3 o'clock Coroner Phelps was preparing to hold an inquest over the remains. A warrant will likely be issued against Hannon after the inquest.

At Carlisle, Ky., Edward Crump, aged fifteen, was sentenced to the penitentiary for seven years. He killed John Wilson, another fifteen-year-old boy, last August.

In the circuit court at Russellville two verdicts, aggregating $22,500, have been returned against the Louisville and Nashville railroad in damage suits.

Mrs. Elizabeth Cayce Clardy, mother of Congressman John D. Clardy, died Saturday at Bell's, Christian county, Ky., in her 94th year.

A caucus of Democratic members of the House at Frankfort has been called for Wednesday next at 3 p. m. to consider the Goebel Election Bill.

H. L. Underwood, of Birmingham, Ala., has been elected manager of the Middlesborough (Ky.) Town and Land Co., succeeding the present manager, Mr. Johnson, who will return to England.

It is said that the Clark-county grand jury has found indictments against the promoters of the "Kero Goose" lottery that has sprung up in Jeffersonville since the Frankfort lottery ceased to operate.

Only those furnishing evidences that they supported the democratic state and national tickets may enter the Nashville primary election. This will debar many prospective candidates.

The Spanish press is discussing the possibility of confederating the Latin republics of South America with Spain. English papers believe France would stand by Spain in the event of trouble with the United States.

It is believed in London that a conflict between British and French forces in West Africa cannot much longer be averted unless there is a change in the attitude of the French. England has dispatched more officers and war munitions to the scene.

After four days of consideration the lower house of congress Saturday passed the bankruptcy bill reported by the judiciary committee as a substitute for the Nelson bill, which was passed by the senate last summer. The vote stood 158 to 124.

The strength of the agrarians in Germany is daily growing. The Federation of Husbandry has declared its intention of opposing the government unless it promises the agrarians to paralyze the American trade. There is much talk of a tariff war.

THE MILLIONAIRE TRAMP.

The Remains to Be Shipped This Afternoon to Gloversville.

His Hard-Hearted Brother Finally Relented.

The body of the "Millionaire tramp," Jas. E. Berry, after laying on a cooling-board in Nance's undertaking establishment since early in January, was this afternoon shipped at 2:45 o'clock to his brother in Gloversville, N. Y.

Undertaker Nance received a telegram Saturday night from Samuel Berry, of Gloversville, asking the probable cost of shipping the remains, and was informed by telegraph. Mrs. Berry, at Mt. Vernon, Ill., gave her consent by telegraph through her attorney, and this afternoon Undertaker Nance shipped the body via Louisville.

This ends probably the last chapter of the tramp's tragic life.

ROADMASTER SABIN RESIGNS

To Accept a Position at Chicago.

Roadmaster A. T. Sabin, of the Illinois Central, has resigned his position to accept another one as one of the chief engineers of Chicago division of the same road. He has been roadmaster ever since the Illinois Central took charge.

He will be succeeded by Mr. J. W. Wallace, now in the engineering corps at Chicago. The change is somewhat in the nature of an exchange of positions.

Drunken Passenger.

A hack driven by Joe Parrish, and occupied by Annie Copeland, of Court street fame, was struck by a street car on Ninth street Saturday night and partially demolished. The horses ran away and Parrish jumped, being painfully bruised. The woman also jumped, tearing the glass from the door, and was found in the street and carried to a house near by. Many of the women in the neighborhood assembled to help resuscitate her, and Dr. Reddick was called. He found that she was mostly drunk and was scarcely hurt at all.

Is Getting a Good Practice.

Attorney John G. Miller has opened up his office for the general practice of law in the building adjoining the Kanly Kitchen, and is enjoying a good practice.

Death of Mrs. Ed Holland.

Mrs. Edgar Holland, of South Sixth street, died yesterday afternoon after a brief illness, aged about 23. She leaves a husband to mourn her loss. The funeral occurred at 2:30 this afternoon.

MONDAY, FEB. 21, 1898

The average Daily Circulation of the Sun for the year 1897 was 1539 copies, as shown by the daily records of the office and proved by the sworn affidavits of four responsible men.

The Sun claims the largest circulation of any daily paper in Paducah. From the day of its first issue it has made its circulation public and asks its advertisers to make a complete investigation of its circulation books at any time. No other paper in Paducah will state its circulation.

The people of the United States hold $720,000,000 in gold, every dollar of which the Bryanites claim is worth 200 cents.

The balance of trade in favor of the United States for the month of January was $58,000,000, which shows that we are not losing our foreign markets on account of the new tariff, as our free trade friends predicted.

The announcement of Rev. Sam Jones as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Georgia is a guarantee that the campaign in that state this summer will be of the requisite temperature to be interesting.

It will probably be a little embarrassing to the Democratic stump orators who expected to use their 1896 speeches in the campaign of 1898, to know that the money in circulation in the United States at the beginning of the present month was $223,556,262 in excess of the amount in circulation at the date of the adoption of the Democratic platform of 1896, which is being made the basis of Democratic operations in the campaign of this year.

The money received by the farmers of the country for their farm products in the past year will exceed by hundreds of millions of dollars that received in the preceding year. The excess in the value of their exportations alone during the seven months just ended is, in round numbers, $75,000,000, and as the exportations are but a small proportion of their total sales, it is evident that their gain in money received for their products during the year will reach into the hundreds of millions of dollars as compared with that received in the preceding year.

Mr. Teller and his associates in and out of Congress, who profess such a warm admiration for the Mexicans and their system of finance, might with entire propriety take some lessons from them just now. Simultaneously with the adoption by the free-silver party in the Senate of a resolution favoring the payment of United States bonds in silver coin, the Mexican government comes to the front with a proposition to sell bonds payable in gold, and gold only. There is quite a contrast between the action of a silver currency country proposing to sell gold-bearing bonds and that of a country which issued bonds with the understanding that they would be paid in gold and then suggests paying them in silver.

President McKinley's suggestions made in his recent New York speech that the duty of the party entrusted with the management of national affairs is to take up the currency problem and do all that can be done toward its solution, are likely to be followed, it seems, by the Republicans in Congress. Latest reports from Washington indicate that a bill will probably be reported to the House, based upon the President's recommendation, by which the greenbacks redeemed with gold will be retained in the Treasury, or provision made by which greenbacks shall be utilized by national banks as a part of their reserve, thus taking them out of the field of active circulation. Another feature of the prospective bill will, it is understood, reduce the taxation on national bank issues and permit banks to increase their currency up to the par value of the bonds deposited to secure their circulation, thus increasing the currency in this manner, while reducing the danger of further use of the gold-bearing notes for the withdrawal of gold from the Treasury.

THE PRESIDENTS POLICY.

The Naval Court of Inquiry to investigate the loss of the Maine meets today. The investigations of that court may and may not disclose satisfactorily to the public the cause of the disaster. President McKinley has most wisely refused to allow Spain to join in the investigation although allowing Spain at the same time the right to conduct an independent investigation. The administration has wisely withheld all expression of opinion, other than that the cause of the disaster was accidental. No one doubts but, when the Court of Inquiry has completed its work, that President McKinley will draft a plan of action that will abundantly satisfy the whole people.

One of the most unfortunate phases of the relation of this government to the Cuban crisis has been the extreme position assumed by the Cuban party in Congress and the sensational statements of certain sensational newspapers. While the sympathies of the whole American people have gone out to the Cubans in their struggle for independence, it does not follow and is not a fact that the people as a whole have desired a war with Spain in order to free the Cubans. A totally different situation prevails today from what prevailed years ago when it was the custom to recognize insurgents as soon as they demonstrated their fighting abilities. During the formative period of governments in the New World, the right of the parent European nations to authority on the American continent rested almost entirely on might, or ability, to retain their possessions here. But that time has passed. Commercial rights have today become a most important factor in International Law. European nations today hold to their foreign possessions, or plot to increase their foreign territorial holdings purely for commercial reasons. These commercial rights are the most valuable that a nation possesses. On account of this change of international conditions and relations the question of interference in the Cuban war becomes a vastly different affair from what it would have been fifty years ago or more.

Those members of Congress, both in the Upper and Lower Houses who have criticized the administration of McKinley for its position or policy as to Cuba have been making grand stand plays and have been catering to a false popular sentiment, for the thinking people have all been willing to trust the patriotism of the administration. No men in the whole country are in a better position to understand the real feeling of the people, to know what's really best for the country, and to appreciate fully the importance of any given policy from an international standpoint than the officials at Washington.

The quality of patriotism is one that has never yet been wanting in any administration or any President that this country has had. Certain Presidents may have taken positions on internal questions that were at the time and since have been the subject of much just criticism; but when the honor of the American people has been at stake, none have been found wanting.

Many homes in this country today know what war means. The inmates of these homes can fully appreciate the reluctance of the President to rush into a foreign war. American citizens are today not like so many cattle to be sacrificed to the rashness of ambitious politicians. No people on the face of the earth are braver than the American people, or more ready to offer themselves upon the altar of national honor. But no President or no administration can afford to assume the responsibility of war without using all honorable means to settle the question at issue by peaceable means.

This has been the policy of President McKinley. If, however, war must come, if the honor of the Old Flag demands it, no President will conduct it more heartily or more patriotically than will McKinley. The American people will find in him a leader that will arouse the pride and enthusiasm of every American citizen.

EQUAL RIGHTS TO ALL.

Lexington Leader.
If there is anything more the free silver Louisville Dispatch wants from the Kentucky Legislature it ought to speak out now or ever after hold its peace. Following are a few of the measures that have passed one or both Houses in the sole interest of that newspaper:

Resolutions declaring the Dispatch the official organ of the General Assembly, paying for the publication of proceedings which other papers publish for nothing, and subscribing at the state's expense for a large number of copies every day.
A bill to compel railroads to give the Dispatch some trifling privileges in the way of sending papers in baggage which it claims railways now deny it because of its free silver anti-corporation sentiments.
A bill permitting the Dispatch to sue its stockholders who failed to make good their subscriptions to the capital stock of the company.
A bill confiscating the Associated Press newspaper reports in Kentucky.

FRANCES WILLARD'S LIFE WORK.

Frances Elizabeth Willard, author and reformer, born in Churchville, near Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 28, 1839. She was of the ninth generation in descent from Maj. Simon Willard, founder and forty years a leading resident of Concord, Mass. He was a Puritan, from Kent, in England. Her great-grandfather, Rev. Elijah Willard, fought in the revolution and was for forty years pastor at Dublin, N. H. Her father, Josiah F. Willard, and mother, Mary Thompson Hill, were born in Caledonia county, Vermont, in 1805, and both removing to Western New York in 1816, were married in 1831. They went to Oberlin, O., to attend college in 1840, remaining there until 1846, when they became pioneers in Wisconsin, ten years in advance of railroads.

Miss Willard's early life was passed almost wholly out of doors, her fondness for riding, fishing, reading, sketching and climbing trees being unusual, and her wise mother permitting the pursuits which laid the foundation for lifelong health of body and mind. At fourteen she first attended school.

In 1857 she went to Milwaukee College for Women, founded by Catharine Beecher, and in 1859 was graduated from what is now the Woman's College of Northwestern University at Evanston, Ill. She began teaching in 1861, and rose to be dean of the college and professor of esthetics in her alma mater. This was in 1870-74. Meanwhile she was preceptress at Lima, N. Y. (Genevieve Wesleyan Seminary), in 1857-67, and traveled and studied languages and history of the fine arts in Europe and the East from 1868 to 1870, going north to Helsingfors, east to Damascus and south to Numbia.

She wrote, in 1883, "Nineteen Beautiful Years," a story of her only sister's life. It has been published in England, translated into French and Danish, and a new edition, with preface by John G. Whittier, was brought out by the Woman's Temperance Publication Association in Chicago. "How to Win," prefaced by Rose Elizabeth Cleveland, was published in 1896; "Woman in the Pulpit," introduction by Rev. Dr. Talmage and Revs. Joseph Parker and Joseph Cook; "Woman and Temperance," with an introduction by Miss Mary A. Lathbury; "Hints and Helps in Temperance Work" are among her books and in 1887 was published "Glances of Fifty Years," her autobiography, written by request of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union, of which she has been president since 1879.

Miss Willard early became the leader of the new movement of the modern temperance reform when it had reached the period of second thought—that is, of organization and systematic work, and for twenty years she has traveled almost constantly in its interest (having resigned her position in the Northwestern University soon after the crusade) and visited every town in the United States having 10,000 inhabitants and most of those having 5,000. In 1883 she worked and spoke in every state and territory of the republic. Miss Willard spoke once a day on an average for the first ten years of her temperance work and attended sometimes twenty state conventions yearly. She has made eight trips to the Southern states, brought together the women of the two sections under the white flag of the W. C. T. U., with the now famous motto "For God and Home and Native Land."

Sleep, my little one, and I will go.
Though the tempest through the night
Shrieks its tones of wild fright,

BENTON'S GAS PLANT.

The City to Be Lighted With Acetylene Gas.

A New Venture in Street Lighting—Satisfactory Results.
Benton, Marshal county, comes to the front with a novelty in the shape of street illumination. She will in all probability be the first town in the state to be lighted with acetylene gas. Mr. J. C. Hicks has been experimenting on a small scale with it for some time with gratifying success. He has put in a regular plant for manufacturing the gas, and the work of laying the pipes has been in progress for several days. The plant was near enough completion to give it trial Saturday night, with satisfactory results. This new gas is becoming very popular. It is said to make a light brighter than electricity. The steamer George Cowling has the acetylene gas for illumination, and many residences and stores in Golconda, and Brooklyn, Ill., are lighted by it. It has not yet been introduced in Paducah.

SECRETARY ROSEVEAR'S REPORT.

Read at the Annual State Y. M. C. A. Convention.

The annual report of Secretary Henry C. Rosevear, of the Y. M. C. A., read Saturday at the state convention in Maysville, cannot fail to be of interest to the several hundred members in Paducah. He reports, among other things:
There are thirty associations in the state. Twenty-four associations report 4,596 members. Nineteen associations report current expenses amounting to $43,350. Fifteen associations report libraries numbering 3,430 volumes. Fifteen report reading rooms having 1,131 visits to them daily. Twenty-one report twenty-seven young men's meetings each week, with an aggregate attendance of $71. Fourteen report an average attendance of 158 at twenty classes in Bible study. There are twenty-five secretaries in the state, including assistant secretaries and physical directors.
Of the buildings in the state, the report referred to the Louisville association building and its commodious gymnasium as one of the largest and best in the country, thoroughly modern and convenient in all its arrangements. Also, the Owensboro building was declared completed, at a cost of $25,000, and it is to be opened next week. Special financial canvasses in cities of the state were aided by the state committee. A careful work in the colleges was accomplished during the year. The work at five railroad points has been faithfully and vigorously maintained.
Ten associations in the state are doing special work in physical development of young men. In most instances the best equipment for physical culture in our cities is found in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasiums.
The finances of the state executive committee have been the cause of much embarrassment the past year. The committee depends on voluntary subscriptions from friends of the work. The amount paid during the year was $9,977.09, with an indebtedness of $97,149. An amount somewhat less than that of one year ago. While a few staunch friends here have been liberal, many were indifferent in the matter of financial aid to this important work.
Much has been done during the past year among the young men of the state, but vastly more remains undone. The untrodden field in organized town, college, railroad center and internal extension is immense. In eight cities, varying in population from 5,000 to 12,000, in twenty towns of from 2,000 to 5,000, in 207 towns of from 500 to 2,000, in six colleges and academies and four railroad centers no special young men's work is being done, though pastors, business men and young men constantly remind us of the great need. As we look upon the field white to harvest, shall we not pray the Lord of the harvest that He may send forth men and money into His harvest?

Wood and field are white with snow—
Sleep, my darling; sleep, my baby.
Hear the wind-kissed leaves blow—

THE WOMAN WHO WORKS.

BY HELEN AINSIE SMITH.

"Pshaw!" said the Married Sister. "I am impatient with Minerva for going off to live by herself. A single woman should live with her relatives, if she has any, until she marries and sets up a family of her own."
"Perhaps she feels that in earning her own living she also earns the right to a certain independence," suggested the Married Sister's spouse.
"Suppose she does," retorted the Married Sister. "It is not proper, and it does not speak well for her family among outsiders."
"It's none of outsiders' business," said the Bachelor Brother. "In fact, it is not yours, nor mine, nor anyone's business but Minerva's, so long as she is able to take care of herself and live in a healthful, respectful way."
"That's just like a man," said the Married Sister. "Now consider, Minerva is entirely alone in the world. She is away from her house, wherever it is, from nine to five of clock every day in the week, and while she earns a good salary, she has nothing for luxuries. I have a comfortable home, with something to spare all around, which I would be glad to share with her. She could give me an equivalent in odd ways, if she felt she must, and save her things she loves. I do not want her to feel under any obligations. Of course I should appreciate a little help occasionally with the housekeeping and the children."
"Yes," interrupted the Bachelor Brother. "and poor Minerva would never have an hour she could call her very own. If her work required her early or kept her late she would be upsetting your breakfast and your dinner, or going without her own. If people came to see her on business or pleasure, they would be more than likely to intrude on your visitors or your privacy. If she wanted to do ## this, that, or the other, she would always be accountable to you for it.

"Those very considerations you spoke of, her company or her help to you, would always crop up in her own mind to interfere with her duty, either in work or pleasure."
"How absurd!" said the Married Sister. "We were always the best of friends. Neither of us would be selfish."
"Precisely," answered the Bachelor Brother. "If Minerva left her work tired to death, she could not give up to it freely and healthfully as soon as she left the office. It would worry you to see it, so she would put herself on a stretch to conceal it. She never would be selfish enough to rest if the baby were fretty, or if our good brother-in-law were out and you seemed to want some one to chat with you."
"That is true, I must admit."
"Yes," said the Married Sister's spouse. "We could not make her take a night key and come and go like a lodger, and be as free as she ought to be. But if she lives by herself she will unconsciously arrange her conditions to suit her taste and requirements. The very fact that she has no one to consult will arouse impulses for self-preservation that would never crop out in another person's house, even in ours."
"Why, both you horrid men seem to be against me!" cried the Married Sister. "I believe you are encouraging her to refuse all the little luxuries of my home, and to go off and live in her own economical, half-bohemian fashion!"
"If we are, dear Sis," spoke up the Bachelor Brother, "it is because we admit Minerva's right to her own mind, for one thing. For another, we ought to be better fitted than you are to judge the case of a working person, woman or man. We know that as soon as we ceased to be boys we began to shape everything towards our life-work, John with his business. I with my profession. With that came the growth of our individuality, the natural instinct for a place of our own. When we could pay our way we felt that we had an inalienable right to live as we wanted to, provided we behaved ourselves and did not shrink our duty. Our families expected us to have our freedom, to set up bachelor apartments, if we wanted to. Neither of us would have amounted to a hill of beans if we had been shut in and hampered as with the best intentions, you wish to shut in Minerva."
"The women who are coming into our businesses and our professions are in pretty much the same situation as the young men. A woman will lose her job or break down if she works hard at her typewriter or her designing board all day and helps anyone keep house nights and mornings, Sundays and holidays. She needs to be her own mistress. She needs free access to many people and things; and she needs to spend her off hours in exercise, fresh air, reading and entertainments. Women who take up of office work are too little inclined to appreciate what rest and recuperation they need, and with all due respect to you, my dear sister, a woman who lives as you do, with no heavy drain on her purse or her time, is usually a cruel waster of the working woman's off hours."
"Minerva has fixed herself in a handy, comfortable little apartment, where all the daily essentials to her health are provided for without infringing on anyone else's rights or comfort. One of her chief pleasures now is to visit you. She comes for dinner on Sunday; she plays with the children, has a good talk with you, and goes back refreshed to her own widely different life of hard and steady work. You now appreciate that she has a harder time in life than yourself, and you think of all the comforts and pleasures you can give her. So do her other friends. If she were living with her sister, she would be considered more fortunate (though in reality less so than now), and would not have so many little pleasures to lubricate life."
"For my part, I'm glad Minerva has had the sense to set up for herself and the backbone to persist in doing so in the face of all the opposition which was thrown at her by you and other eminently respectable but wholly uncomprehending mothers of families. As the world has had to accept the woman who works, it will now have to allow her to live on her earnings as she sees fit. The shadowy figure of the maiden aunt is disappearing from the background of our family groups. We must look for her in the full light of her own freedom, calling her soul her own, and quite as much a dispenser of good cheer as her married sister."—Congregationalist.

NAILED TO THE FLOOR.

Were This Man's Slippers—Thought He Was Paralyzed.

One of the clerks in a china store not far from Tenth and Market streets has a large assortment of corns, and to make life bearable during business hours he usually changes his shoes for a pair of slippers upon arriving at the shop in the morning. The slippers, when not in use, are left upon the floor beside the clerk's desk, and, being rather portly, he usually slips his feet into them without stooping to take them up himself. Having noticed this fact, some of the other employees of the store played a trick upon their stout comrade one day last week and enjoyed a good laugh at his expense. After he had gone home on the preceding night, they nailed the soles of his slippers to the floor. The next morning he slipped into them as usual and made a move to walk away. To his great astonishment, the clerk stood rooted to the spot. He could not move an inch, strain as he would to lift his feet from the floor. "Good Lord!" he exclaimed. "I believe I'm paralyzed! I can't raise my feet!" For two or three minutes he was in mortal agony, but the practical jokers, seeing that he was pale with fright, explained the trick and fled before the wrath of the paralyzed man.—Philadelphia Record.

NAILED TO THE FLOOR.

Were This Man's Slippers—Thought He Was Paralyzed.

One of the clerks in a china store not far from Tenth and Market streets has a large assortment of corns, and to make life bearable during business hours he usually changes his shoes for a pair of slippers upon arriving at the shop in the morning. The slippers, when not in use, are left upon the floor beside the clerk's desk, and, being rather portly, he usually slips his feet into them without stooping to take them up himself. Having noticed this fact, some of the other employees of the store played a trick upon their stout comrade one day last week and enjoyed a good laugh at his expense. After he had gone home on the preceding night, they nailed the soles of his slippers to the floor. The next morning he slipped into them as usual and made a move to walk away. To his great astonishment, the clerk stood rooted to the spot. He could not move an inch, strain as he would to lift his feet from the floor. "Good Lord!" he exclaimed. "I believe I'm paralyzed! I can't raise my feet!" For two or three minutes he was in mortal agony, but the practical jokers, seeing that he was pale with fright, explained the trick and fled before the wrath of the paralyzed man.—Philadelphia Record.

BISHOP DUDLEY

Declines a High Position—His Reasons.

Bishop Thos. U. Dudley, of Louisville, who has many friends in Paducah as well as other parts of the state has declined the secretaryship of the Domestic and Foreign Missionary society of the Protestant Episcopal church.

He offered as his reason for refusing the position in the following letter to Bishop Doane, of Albany, N. Y., who was appointed as a committee of one to notify him of his election:

"I ask leave to say a word in answer to the question, which may most naturally be asked, why I did not give this decision when I was nominated to this position by the almost unanimous action of the board at its meeting in January, when I was present. My answer is that I did not dare this in a moment to decide the question of duty presented by the action, with but one dissenting voice, of such a body of representative churchmen. I could not feel that such almost unanimous action might indicate that it was the will of God that I should undertake this extraordinary service, and, therefore, all that I dared to say at that time was that I hoped I would always be willing to undertake any duty which the church should put upon me, at the cost of any personal sacrifice, and even the cost of a seeming sacrifice to the diocese of my love."

"But now that by correspondence with my brethren in the episcopate I have learned that a majority of them are opposed to my acceptance of the office, even for the short time designated, and now that I have learned that the action of the board itself was by no means unanimous, my way is made perfectly plain; the constraining force of the unanimity is no longer present to compel the sacrifice of myself and of my diocese."

OF OWENSBORO'S MAGNIFICENT Y. M. C. A. BUILDINGS.

The exercises on the occasion of the opening and dedication of the new Y. M. C. A. building at Owensboro commenced next Wednesday night and will conclude with the services on Saturday night.

Wednesday night an address will be given by Rev. W. H. Pinkerton, of this city, at 9 o'clock.

Saturday night an address will be given at the Third Baptist church by Rev. Sam Jones, at 7:30 o'clock.

The Owensboro Y. M. C. A. building is the first erected in Kentucky, and is one of the best arranged buildings for Y. M. C. A. work in the United States, so says Mr. Uhler, a member of the international committee to overlook all plans of Y. M. C. A. buildings.

The first money raised for the erection of the building was at the Sam Jones meeting at the Y. M. C. A. May, 1895, when $22,000 was subscribed. Later this amount was raised to $26,000. Work began on the foundation in the spring of 1896. The lot cost $6,000; the building, including fixtures and steam heating, $18,000; furnishings, $500, making a total cost of $24,500. The $500

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a number of years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only catarrh cure on the market. It is the only medicine in the world that cures catarrh in its various forms. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.
